

SNR Call for Books and Book Reviewers for

Under Fire: Environmental Protection in a Turbulent World

The Book Review Editors of Society and Natural Resources kindly request proposed reviews (and reviewers) for books and other media that explore how societies achieve protection of the environment and natural resources in hostile political environments. Hostile political environments could mean political parties actively working against environmental interests, and/or competing concerns are vying for resources which could otherwise be used for protecting the health of people and the environment. We hope to gain insights from lessons at a variety of different spatial and cultural contexts with an eye to those that are scalable and broadly applicable in multiple locations around the world.

For consideration, please send a brief cover letter proposing a book/ media title and how that work (or works, in the case of proposed review essays) complements the theme of Under Fire to the following link: https://osu.az1.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_emO1wxXxfwu7Nk1 by April 2nd, 2017. Prospective reviewers should be fully independent from the authors of works proposed for review. To avoid potential conflicts of interest, prospective reviewers should include a brief CV with their cover letter. SNR seeks career scholars and practitioners for book/ media reviewers. Doctoral students and recent postdoctoral fellows are also invited as long as they include a midcareer or senior scholar as co-reviewer.

If proposal is accepted, SNR's Book Review Editors will reply with a formal invitation to submit a review. Review proposals that don't fit within the theme of Under Fire are welcome also. For publisher's guidelines on book reviews, please visit

<http://www.tandfonline.com/action/authorSubmission?journalCode=usnr20&page=instructions>

For questions and assistance, please contact snr.bookreviews@gmail.com.